

MISSION & VISION

The Boston Church Planting Equipping Center (BCPEC) exists to foster a church planting movement and strengthen existing church planting churches by providing practical theological training in the context of the local mission field.

We accomplish this by combining the highest level of theological education through Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary with practical ministry experience through local internships. The Equipping Center partners with local churches to train future church planters and other church leaders. Any student beginning, continuing, or completing their theological training can apply.

HOW

DOES THIS WORK?

Southeastern has partnered with the Boston Church Planting Center to train and equip leaders, so they can stay on the mission field in Greater Boston. This is a combined effort where students take online classes from Southeastern professors, on the ground classes and training from Boston area pastors, and occasional face-to-face teaching with Southeastern professors.
